Party Government Has Been Replaced by Coalition of Democrats and Insurgents

Conservatives and Regulars at Disadvantage in New Alignment.

By David Lawrence
Copyright 1924 by The Courier.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Group government has replaced party government. All doubts as to the power of the insurgent Republicans to do about as they please in the present session of Congress have been removed. And President Coolidge, possessed of the veto power, stands as the single-handed champion of conservative, regular Republican doctrine.

The taxation plan of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon now has been beaten in both the House and the Senate by a coalition of Democrats and insurgent Republicans. The first important test of the new rules of the House which delayed the organization of the present session of Congress has turned out exactly as expected. No longer can the regular Republicans pigeonhole a measure in committee. A majority vote can bring it out according to the new rules and that now has happened. It marks an epoch in the history of the House of Representatives. It means more power to groups than parties.

The voting of the Simmons tax rates into the Senate bill as proposed by the Democrats and the virtual acceptance in the House of the Democratic rates proposed by Representative Garner in what is known as the Longworth compromise does not mean that the Democrats are controlling Congress. It has a deeper meaning than that. It reveals that there is a new alignment in the national legislature—a radical liberal, or progressive group composed of insurgent Republicans and most of the Democrats and a conservative and regular group composed almost wholly of Republicans and one or two Democrats.

On the surface it might seem as if the Democrats are merely following the Republican strategy of yesteryears in aiding and abetting all political mischief which works to the disadvantage of the party in power but what has been happening in the last few weeks cannot be attributed entirely to that cause. The Democrats would not have opposed the Mellon rates nor would the insurgent Republicans have deliberately abandoned them if they had not believed that the Mellon cut helped the wealthy too much and that the substitute bills gave the man of smaller income more of a reduction in his taxes. Similarly in the House, the support given the Howell-Barkley bill to safeguard the rights of union labor in the railway crafts is significant of a belief that the working classes are more numerous than the employers.

Congress as a rule legislates to get a direct response from the largest number of people and while the railway employers and the persons of large income could probably prove that their proposals are in the end of economic benefit to more persons than themselves, the House and Senate being politically minded does not accept such a view. The Administration or leadership which champions the cause of the so-called conservative business interests of the country is doomed in the present temper of W. L. Barnell & Company, betting commissioners, announcing the odds, said there are no bets on the Republican nomination, which is conceded to Coolidge.

Was Member Naval Expedition to Honduran Capital

Chief Torpedoman R. C. Van Gorder, who a few years ago was in charge of the Navy Recruiting Station here, is in the city on a furlough and to join Mrs. Van Gorder who has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Marsh for some time.

Chief Van Gorder, who is assigned to the U. S. S. Lardener, a torpedo destroyer, recently returned from Central America where he served as a member of the force sent to protect the United States consul at Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras, where a revolution was in progress.

This uprising was quelled and the rebels loaded in box cars and shipped out of the country. Chief Van Gorder has an interesting collection of photographs taken during the expedition, one showing the "generals" of the rebel army after they had surrendered to a detachment of which Van Gorder was a member.

After spending a few days here Chief Van Gorder, accompanied by Mrs. Van Gorder, will return to Norfolk where the vessel to which he is assigned will enter the drydock for overhauling.

Reformatory Boys Who Broke Lockup Here Recaptured

Joe Zampino and Thomas Knotti, two youths who escaped from the Connellsville lockup yesterday evening after picking the antiquated lock on the door of the cell department, were caught early this morning at Everson and were to be brought back here some time today. They will immediately be turned over to E. A. Black, a field representative for northern Ohio, who came here to get the boys, wanted at an Ohio reformatory from which they recently escaped.

The boys were arrested on Saturday by Baltimore & Ohio police who located them in a freight car. The Ohio reformatory authorities were notified by R. C. Bledsoe, captain of the railroad officers, and Black came on for the youths. He arrived yesterday and was persuaded to remain over and visit the city, postponing the departure until this morning. In the meantime the jail delivery occurred.

The boys, according to another prisoner, got away about 5:25 o'clock. He said they picked the lock of the corridor door. This was done, it is believed, while the state motor patrol force was examining applicants for automobile drivers' licenses.

Chief Murphy was in his office but it was an easy matter for the prisoners to get away by the side door, as that section is in the opposite end of the police station.

Police in adjoining towns were notified and railroad officers kept a close watch on outgoing trains.

Arrangements were being made today to fit a padlock to the door, to which there will be only one key. This will be kept in the office of the chief.

Detective V. Bert Ritchie was the last officer in the cell department. He says he locked the door and is substantiated in this by Fred Moon, city electrician, who declares he saw Ritchie shake the door to make sure it was locked.

Arthur R. Miller, Former Coke Region Engineer, Prominent as a Leader in Rescue Work at the Benwood Mine

Arthur R. Miller, who for 15 years was employed by the H. C. Frick Coke Company as division engineer and later superintendent of Leisenring No. 3, and is now a prominent coal operator and consulting engineer located at Charleston, W. Va., has been very active and efficient in directing rescue teams in the Benwood mine, near Wheeling, where a recent explosion involved the loss of over 100 lives. In this work his experience in gaseous mines has qualified him for leadership.

Mr. Miller was called to the scene within a few hours after the explosion occurred to consult with State Mine Inspector Lamble as to methods of restoring ventilation and rescue work.

Equipped with gas masks and canary birds the rescue teams have entered the mine and prosecuted their operations under the direction of Mr. Miller. One night last week he was slightly overcome by carbon monoxide and was obliged to leave the mine after having been in it continuously for 24 hours. After a short rest he returned to the mine to push the work of restoring ventilation in order that the work of the rescue crews may be advanced as rapidly as possible. During one of his tours of duty in the mine he received a cut over his left eye from a fall of slate from the roof.

After his first inspection of the mine Mr. Miller expressed his belief that all the men at work at the time of the explosion were dead. The force of the explosion was shown by the fact that a mining machine in one of the advanced entries was literally torn to pieces and that a piece of a sheepskin coat worn by a miner was found far removed from the body of the wearer.

Mr. Miller has refused to comment on the cause of the disaster saying he was merely assisting Chief Inspector Lamble in the work of rescue. At several times Chief Lamble has left Mr. Miller in full charge while taking a rest himself.

Mr. Miller is associated with the Blue Ridge Fuel Company of Charleston and as consulting engineer is now engaged in developing a coal property south of Benwood on the Ohio side of the river.

Before going to West Virginia Mr. Miller was an associate of F. M. Richey in mining and other enterprises and resided in Connellsville. Mrs Miller, formerly Miss Emma Noyes Brady, is known to many local people, having been a teacher in the High School prior to her marriage.

Squire Garletts Let Out of Jail to Run Down Thieves

Former Justice of the Peace C. C. Garletts, under sentence of nine months in the Allegheny county workhouse, was released from the Fayette county jail this morning on a parole of one week, in order that he might assist officers in running down burglars who on Tuesday night broke into his home at Brownsville and ransacked the place.

Considerable loot was secured by the robbers, including a quantity of liquor.

Garletts was sentenced a month ago to serve the workhouse sentence but he had not yet been taken away. He is to report to Sheriff Adams on Wednesday, May 14, and surrender himself. If the robbers are apprehended at an earlier date he is to immediately give himself up.

The parole was granted on the recommendation of District Attorney E. D. Brown, who expressed the belief that Garletts might be of value to the officers because of his knowledge of criminals.

Body of One of Drowned Negroes Is Recovered

A body, identified as that of DeWitt Harrison, one of the two negroes who was drowned in the Youghiogheny River recently while endeavoring to wade it and escape from a Baltimore & Ohio policeman, was recovered yesterday near Broad Ford. It was taken to the funeral parlors of C. C. Mitchell and interment was made this afternoon. Rev. R. D. Epps officiated. Burial was in Hill Grove Cemetery.

Harrison and another man, whose identity is unknown, were riding on a train and when they saw the officers approaching ran into the river in an effort to escape. They were swept under by the strong current.

Chief of Police P. M. Murphy saw the bodies floating on the surface after they passed under the Yough bridge. At Adelaide Joe Bodner saw one body disappear but he and Frank Rulill waded into the stream and recovered the other. Coroner S. A. Baltz of Uniontown was notified.

Babe Adams' Arm Fails Him After 16 Years as Star

PITTSBURG, May 8.—Few of the several thousand spectators who cheered Charles B (Babe) Adams, a Pirate hero in the world series of 1909 and still the idol of countless fans, when the patriarch of pitchers strode to the mound to relieve Wilbur Cooper in the fourth inning of yesterday's game at Forbes Field, realized they were witnesses of one of the most dramatic incidents in the history of the sport in Pittsburg.

"Babe," whose star has risen and twinkled brigh for 16 campaigns, has been troubled all spring with his throwing arm, and has made several trips to Bonesetter Reese in Youngstown in an attempt to "iron out" the muscular kinks, which years of service have brought. Through it all the veteran has been optimistic that the arm would round into shape, even though those who watched his condition closely knew that his days as a moundsman were near an end.

"I can't throw another pitch, boys," said the idol of Pittsburg fans," and he started to leave the field. The scene depicted the passing of a great star from the game he had served so well.

HOUSE MAKES READY TO END SESSION JUNE 7

Only Refusal of Senate to Agree Will Prevent Adjournment Then.

FIGHT FOR TAX RATES

Republican Leaders Make Overtures to Progressives in Final Effort to Prevent Enactment of Democratic Program; Farm Relief Uncertain.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—With a clearly defined legislation program agreed upon the House today began clearing its remaining business to prepare for adjournment June 7.

Republican Leader Longworth served notice that under no consideration would the date be deferred. If the tangled situation in which farm relief is involved fails to clear up the House will adjourn without passing a farm relief bill, he said. Nothing but the refusal of the Senate to adjourn will keep the House in session during the convention, he declared. Even then the House members would be free to attend the convention under a recess plan.

The House program prior to adjournment follows:

1—Agree to a postponed date for Japanese exclusion included in the immigration bill.

2—Pass some sort of farm relief legislation, preferably a bill which does not involve large expenditures.

3—Defeat or greatly modify the bill abolishing the Railroad Labor Board.

4—Pass the veterans' legislation including hospital authorization and revision of Veterans Bureau laws.

5—Attend to a number of minor necessary bills.

With four weeks remaining, House leaders were confident this program could be adhered to with the possible exception of the farm relief bill.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Senate Administration Republicans made peace overtures to the Progressives today in a final effort to save G. O. P. tax rates.

Republican leaders let it be known that they would act favorably on Progressive farm relief legislation if the Progressives would vote for a 37 1-2 maximum surtax. Progressives are said to have refused, feeling they can pass their farm relief plan without help from the regulars.

If some arrangement could be made it would mean defeat for the Democratic rates in the tax bill, just as they are now approaching final adoption.

Democrats could, however, stifle the new movement by making some promises to the Progressives themselves as to how many Democratic votes can be swung to the farm relief program.

Several caucuses have been held among Progressives and Democratic leaders and such an arrangement is understood to have been discussed. The Democrats owe their tax victory to the seven Progressive votes that gave them a slender majority of three. There is some talk of revenge among the regulars. They already had decided to take up the McNary-Haugen price stabilization bill as soon as the tax bill is concluded but now there is a movement afoot to attempt drastic modification of it.

MANY PROBLEMS LIBRARIANS MUST FACE DISCUSSED

Not Adequate, Speaker Says at Convention, But Powerful Social Force.

At the afternoon session of the convention of librarians of the Pittsburg District, held yesterday at the Carnegie Free Library, two excellent talks were features. They were by J. Howard Dice, librarian of the University of Pittsburg Library, and Miss Gallander of the Edgewood Library.

The next meeting will be in 1925 at McKeesport, with Miss McLane of the library there in charge. The committee to assist will include Mrs. Eleanor Olney of the local institution, the state field worker of Harrisburg and one other, yet to be named.

Many problems confronting librarians, in the matter of selection and purchase of books, re-binding and also advertisement were taken up during the afternoon. These were freely talked over in a round-table discussion and many valuable points were gleaned from them. Several townspeople interested in library work attended the afternoon session. Members of the board of trustees were also present.

There was an interesting paper on "Fiction" by Mrs. C. T. Howitt of the Swissvale Library and another by C. E. Wright of the Duquesne Library on "Non-Fiction." Both were of an instructive nature and brought before the assembled librarians data on the latest works.

Mrs. Ralph Godehard addressed the meeting at the opening of the afternoon session. When the morning session opened the address of welcome was made by Captain E. Dunn.

Mr. Dice, the principal speaker of the afternoon had "Real Tests of Library Progress in a Community" as his subject.

"Although the best libraries today lay no claim to adequacy and although the free public library today is as yet largely a potential force," he said, "it is generally recognized that the library represents one of the most interesting and powerful social forces at work in American life. It is less than 75 years since the first public library was established and yet public libraries by development through gifts, buildings, methods, library training, special libraries, have come to fill a pre-eminent place. The history of our profession should reenforce all libraries with encouragement and hope, no matter how conservative or backward the communities may seem to be. The biggest thing about any library, and particularly a small one, is the librarian. It may be debatable as to which is the more important factor in library development—the librarian or the board of trustees, but my own conviction is that the librarian is the library. This is particularly true in the small community where the personal element enters more largely into the library world.

"Service," he continued, "is the end and aim of all library effort. A public library must test its progress on the basis of service. It is well to emphasize the fact that the responsibility is not all with the public library. It rests also on the men of wealth, the business men and on the officers of government. They should understand the whole matter and see to it that they support the library."

Mr. Dice's talk was preceded by a paper on "Library Work With the Schools," by Miss Gallander. It is recognized, she declared, that children need to be taught to enjoy reading that is worth while. "The public school of today," she said, "will supply the adult readers of tomorrow and we must give proper training to the children if they are to be appreciative users of the library."

"The first reference book should be the dictionary," she said, "and lessons should be as closely connected to class work as possible.

"It is interesting to make the child acquainted with the library that is to be his for so many years and to open up a new field for him at a time of life when he is taught, and a feeling of library citizenship and library pride aroused, which if encouraged, will hold over the rest of his school years and probably into his adult life."

During the morning session a paper on "Some Recent Children's Books and What to Guard Against in Buying Them" was read by Miss McLane of McKeesport. It was given considerable discussion by the librarians at the close of her talk.

Children waste soap

Children need lots of washing. When they do it by themselves, they waste much more soap than adults do—by leaving the soap in the water. But with Sweetheart, the waste isn't so serious—because the price of a cake is so low. Sweetheart makes the rich, cleansing but mild lather needed as an aid in preserving a child's fine textured skin.

Jane Seymour's Ghost Haunts Hampton Court

In a recent article by Alberic Cahuet on "The Ghosts of Fontainebleau," published in L'Illustration (Paris), according to a translation in the Kansas City Star, the writer said:

"In England, at Hampton Court, it is admitted that Jane Seymour, third wife of Henry VIII, comes back in the dead of night to wander through the corridors. Her ghost—a wraith with dishevelled hair outlined in white light—has been seen, it is declared, on the little stairway which leads to the private apartment once occupied by the young queen. It is even claimed that the apparition has been photographed — witness the souvenir postcards sold by the caretaker at the castle."

It is frankly admitted that the postcard is intended simply to show what Jane's wraith looks like when it is photographed.

It will be remembered that Jane Seymour, Henry VIII's third wife, was married by this Bluebeard monarch the day after the execution of his second wife, Anne Boleyn, in May, 1536. Jane Seymour was then barely twenty years old. Hampton Court is one of the largest of the royal palaces of England, is of brick with crenellated walls, and was built by Cardinal Wolsey in 1515 as a gift to Henry VIII. More than eight hundred of the thousand-odd rooms are today occupied by members of the British aristocracy who are lodged there gratuitously by the crown. It would appear from this that if the ghost of poor Jane Seymour still haunts the corridors of Hampton Court it runs the risk of encountering plenty of living persons.

Chewing Gum Industry Demands Lots of Mint

Gum-chewers have so increased in numbers that the demand for flavoring extract for the gum results in a constantly increasing price therefor. The acreage in the production of the plant in two Michigan counties exceeds 4,000 acres.

Peppermint as a flavor is today in great demand everywhere. The peppermint men say this is largely owing to its use in the manufacture of chewing gum. Oil of peppermint is now also employed to test steam boilers. If the odor of the oil escapes it indicates that the boiler is unsafe. A boiler that will hold the smell of the oil is said to be capable of holding any pressure to which it is ordinarily subjected.

Peppermint is raised on marsh land formerly given over entirely to the production of hay. This land, formerly worth from $1 to $10 an acre, now brings $100 to $200 an acre. The land is used over and over again for the same kind of a crop without rotation.

LEWIS MORRIS OF VANDERBILT SELLS BUSINESS

Will Move to Pittsburg Monday for Better Educational Advantages.

EIGHTH GRADE TESTS

VANDERBILT, May 8.—Lewis Morris, one of the leading merchants of Vanderbilt, has retired after having been engaged in the general furnishing and department store business for 23 years. He will go to Pittsburg Monday, where, he believes, his children will have better educational advantages. The Morris Department Store will be under new management.

Coming to the United States from Russia in 1901, Mr. Morris was employed by Joseph Staman at Dawson for two years as a clerk. Coming to Vanderbilt in 1903, he sought employment with the Mack Staman department store and here he worked until February 1, 1909, when, upon resigning, he went to Pittsburg. Meanwhile, August 4, 1907, he married Miss Bessie Lotenstein of Pittsburg. He was in Pittsburg until July 10 of the same year. Upon his return he went into partnership with his former employe in Vanderbilt, in the old Johnson building. His first venture in the business for himself was on July 10, 1912, when he bought the J. C. Moore building. He was one of the few merchants to escape the disastrous fire that wiped out the business section of Vanderbilt years ago.

In the meantime three daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Morris. The oldest, Frances, is 15, while Mariam is 14 and Cecelia 10. The oldest has finished the grade schools. They being musically talented, Mr. Morris is determined to have his children follow up in musical lines.

Eighth Grade Examinations.

The eighth grade of the borough schools took the high school entrance examination yesterday. Fourteen pupils took the tests, one being absent, due to illness. J. W. Harbaugh, assistant superintendent of the country schools, was in charge. Those who took the examinations were Misses Helen Belle Ringer, Nellie Cavalcante, Margaret Mader, Nettie McCormick, Mae Morris, Sophia Pillar and Kathryn Shallenberger, William Addis, James Edwards, James Winterhalter, Wesley Strauch, Irwin Pollack, John Bordas and Carl Mulac. The sick student is Miss Virginia McLaughlin, who will be given the examination later.

Ramblers Beat All-Stars.

The Nellie Ramblers defeated the Vanderbilt Junior All-Stars last evening by a score of 4-3 on the "Y" grounds. The score by innings:

Ramblers ——0 1 0 0 1 1 0 1 0—4
All-Stars ——1 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0—3

Batteries—Nellie, Loya and Hudak; All-Stars, Moore and Furin.

Resignation Accepted.

The resignation of Rev. James Mayne of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church was accepted last evening at a congregational meeting, held at the church, where a majority of the congregation assembled. Rev. Mayne announced his intention of resigning from the church about two weeks ago. Rev. Mayne will go to New York where he has secured a parish.

YOU want gasoline that is volatile—easy vaporizing, quick igniting. Atlantic gives you that. And more! It has the stamina which means MAXIMUM MILEAGE.

The Atlantic you buy to-day is a scientifically balanced gasoline—formulated to fit not simply one, but all of the widely varying conditions under which the modern automobile motor must operate.

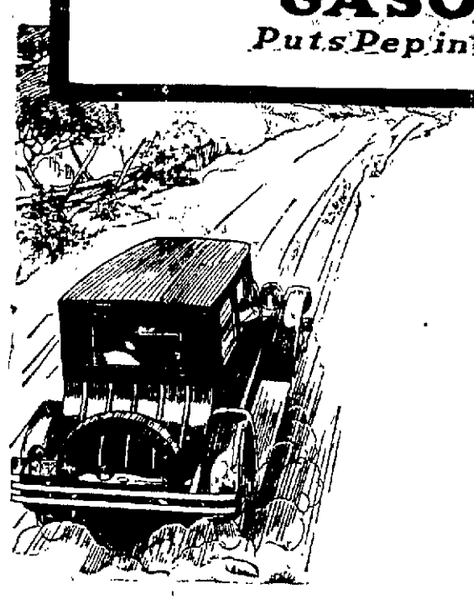

Atlantic isn't simply a fair-weather gasoline. Its uniform chain of "boiling points" gives it all the elements for action and all the elements for power required for every speed, load and temperature.

Action plus power—balance—cleanness! These are the things which determine the mileage you get over an extended period—through traffic driving, through hill country or level stretches, through stormy weather or under a blistering sun, under full load or light.

You need no scientific analysis to discover Atlantic's day-in-and-day-out superiority. Performance will tell you why this year's Atlantic is called "The 5-Point Motor Fuel."

THURSDAY EVE'G, MAY 8, 1924.

CONNELLSVILLE AS A CONVENTION CITY.

The advantages Connellsville has to offer as a meeting place for organizations of various kinds have been repeatedly demonstrated, most recently by the gathering of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Independent Order of the King's Daughters and and the session of the Librarians of the Pittsburg district.

Persons in attendance at these meetings have been unstinted in their praise of their treatment while here and have spoken in highest terms of the facilities we have for handling conventions of like magnitude and character. They have been warmly appreciative of the hospitality extended and have been most cordial in expressing their pleasure at having been here.

Of course, we do not pretend to be equipped to take care of extremely large conventions which are attended by delegates and visitors numbering in the thousands, but moderately sized gatherings, such as the two in question, we are able to care for in a manner extremely gratifying to visitors.

Such assemblages are a distinct advantage to the city. They afford persons from a distance an opportunity to correct any erroneous impressions they may have as to the undesirability of Connellsville as a convention city. Entertainment here and contact with our people bring kindly recollections of their visit a distinct pleasure to our guests and they go back home with nothing but here. They find our people to be unaffectedly cordial, sincere and anxious to promote the pleasure of the stranger within our gates.

These being some of the benefits we derive from conventions and other gatherings in our city holding them here should be encouraged. It does our own people good to come in contact with bright, earnest and capable people from other sections and helps us to broaden our views of persons and things and to lose our own provincialism. If we are afflicted with that social malady. More, every successful convention here is a good advertisement for Connellsville.

EVILS OF THE FEE SYSTEM IN TAX COLLECTIONS.

Strong sentiment in favor of the abolition of the fee system in the collection of local taxes is being created in various parts of the state. The injustice it works upon taxpayers in having to pay collectors excessively large sums for their services is arousing organizations of voters to make an intensive campaign for the repeal of the ancient law which permits what has been termed a system of "legalized graft."

To the women voters belongs the credit of being first in the field with an appeal to voters to get behind the movement. Mrs. John O. Miller chairman of the League of Women Voters has recently issued a statement calling attention of the citizens of the counties, and cities and towns outside of Philadelphia, to the importance of the questions involved in the costly and evil fee system.

"The help of all citizens of the state is needed to correct the loose law which permits the payment of extravagant fees to tax collectors," says Mrs. Miller. "These are days of tax reduction; we simply must cut down the cost of government; not spike the wheels of progress, but cut out waste, extravagance and legalized graft, and those things are exemplified in the fee system. Tax collectors get annually all the way from $6,000 to $25,000.

"In other states, all taxes can be collected in similarly populated counties at a cost of about 15 per cent. of the total spent in Pennsylvania for collecting school taxes alone. It is unfair, uneconomic and absolutely destructive for tax collectors to receive luxurious fees while the taxpayer breaks under the heavy burden of taxation. The tax collectors' ring will have a powerful political lobby at Harrisburg next winter. It is up to the people to oppose them and to demand fair play and real economy."

Unless voters bestir themselves their efforts to have evils of the fee system corrected will avail nothing against the organized activity of the collectors to perpetuate it.

A COMMONSENSE [illegible]ON.

The decision of Judge Hargest of the Dauphin County Court, which will permit the voters of the state to give expression to their sentiments on the bond issue to provide funds to pay a state bonus to veterans of the World War, belongs to that class of decisions which are in entire accord with plain commonsense.

That a mere technicality should defeat the intent of the Legislature to submit the bonus amendment to the voters, is little short of preposterous. To have sustained this contention would have, in effect, caused the court to usurp the functions of the voters in disposing of the question involved in the submission of the proposed amendment to the Constitution.

The merits of the bonus proposition do not enter into this question. It ought to be the free privilege of the voters to say whether or no the wartime promise of "nothing is too good for our soldiers" shall be kept. Judge Hargest's decision preserves this privilege for the voters, as the Legislature intended they should have, and in that respect the decision applies the rule of reason to the solution of the technicalities of a constitutional question.

The thrilling rescue of a fellow seaman by George B. Gomas, U. S. N., shows that Connellsville boys do not need the inspiration of war time to stir them to acts of heroism.

Connellsville has no Chicago Auditorium or Madison Square Garden to house monster conventions, but it does have everything needed to make smaller gatherings a success and pleasure to visiting delegations.

Prying Times

The Mining Congress Journal.

Congressional investigation of executive activities began in an early enough fashion some months ago. But the Senate, to which we have always looked as the steady old wheel horse of the Congressional team, evidently heard the distant drums of the approaching campaign reared up and snorted and off they went, as may well be said in the present instance, "Hell bent for election." At every rough spot in the road some already terrified passenger has been bumped off the political bandwagon bag and baggage, often as greatly to the surprise of the drivers as to the victim.

When President Coolidge stepped to the center of the road and brought the runaway to its haunches with the stiffest jerk on the reins the Senate has felt in many years, there was universal public approval. American sense of fair play does not long relish character assassination, especially by characterless witnesses. Public service should hereafter be listed among extra hazardous occupations with special insurance therefor. A policy might be provided that would insure on a sliding scale of indemnity, a small amount for the mere mention of a name before an investigating committee, a large amount if mentioned by a female witness, and a double indemnity for total loss of character.

It is the present hope of the public that the fever of inquisition is subsiding.

Grade Crossing Menace

Philadelphia Bulletin.

Chairman Ainey of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission told the Railroad and Utilities Commissioners of forty-seven states at their recent gathering that there would be a greater saving for human life if the money the railroads were being asked to expend in establishing automatic train control were spent in the abolition of grade crossings. In other words, there are more live lost on grade crossings than there are in railroad accidents caused by accidents in train operation.

The meeting was particularly devoted to the problem of grade crossing slaughter, and faced the fact that the cost of grade crossing abolition was so great that it limited progress in abolition to a pace that seemed at times to make no advance.

To Wed Third Time

Emmett M. Addis, well known resident of Vanderbilt and a brakeman for the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad, is taking his third venture in marriage. Yesterday he took out a license to wed Miss Mary Softcheck, also of Vanderbilt. Mr. Addis was married twice and was divorced as many times. The divorced wives are residents of Connellsville.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

WHEN WE HAD IMAGINATIONS.

Oh, the fun we used to know
In the distant long ago!
Then a dandelion field
Golden treasures used to yield;
Then green apples we could eat,
Sure the bitterest was sweet
And the dog which used to o
Didn't need a pedigree.

Three or four an army made,
Fit for battles or parade,
And a sandpile served us well
For an armored citadel;
Give us but a plank or two
And we'd ride the ocean blue,
Bravely weathering every gale
With an apron for a sail.

We had but to think of things,
Pirate caves or circus rings,
And their joy was ours to know,
We could hunt the buffalo,
Or in battle bring to grief
Many a grim old Indian chief,
For we had, what's lost to men,
Real imagination, then.

Now we think all joy is real
Something we can touch or feel,
And we cannot put away
All the trials of the day
Letting fancy turn to gold
All the common things of old;
We have lost the power to make
Pleasure just for pleasure's sake.

Now we can't pretend to be
Sailors putting out to sea,
We are slaves to cruel facts,
Nothing fanciful attracts,
For the happy days are gone
When a dream could lure us on;
We've grown proud and learned to grieve
And we cannot make-believe.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

To Teach Counting

One Mother Says:

For a child learning to count, a game of dominoes is a splendid help. Not only will the child learn to count, but it will also associate numbers in groups. I know a teacher who had a child in second grade who seemed unable to use numbers. She asked his mother to get some dominoes and play with him. The child forgot the task in the interest of the game, and instead of feeling that learning to count was an end in itself, learned that it was a means to an end, and so acquired the use of numbers quickly.

Party Government Has Been Replaced by Coalition of Democrats and Insurgents

Congress to defeat.

The tax bill which has been drafted by the coalition of Insurgent Republicans and Democrats is by no means satisfactory to the conservatives in either the Republican or Democratic parties but it is a reduction nevertheless, as compared with the present revenue act. And the mood of Congress is to cut taxes further every year from now on. It will always be a paramount issue. But the radicals feel that the cuts should not be extensive and that the man of smaller income should be given preference right along. The case for the lower surtax advocates has been weakened by several things. First, the argument has been made that business conditions would be improved by lower rates and second that tax exempt securities would not be so popular if taxable securities were made more attractive through lower rates. Congress has not been convinced that even under the present surtaxes business has been ruined. On the contrary, the Republicans plan to go into the campaign with a cry of prosperity. Also, none of the proposals thus far advanced would seriously compete with the tax exempt securities in the opinion of members of Congress who have been instrumental in defeating the Mellon rates.

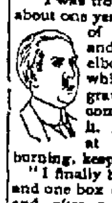

As for the action of the House in forcing to the front the very bill which the railway interests have been fighting this is an indication that big business so to speak, has hurt its own cause by fighting the inevitable. The demand for the Howell-Barkley bill now has been intensified. Coming on the eve of the congressional as well as presidential campaign union labor is gathering its strength once more to strike at those in the Republican or Democratic parties who side with the employers. It's the old story of blocs. This time the labor bloc in the House is in the ascendancy.

President Coolidge might have saved the tax situation by personal intervention and an appeal to the country for the Mellon rates just as the bill was being advanced from one stake to the other but he was advised that he could not hope to change the situation. There is some doubt about this for members of the Republican party are not so ready to commit themselves against the President when they know definitely that he will veto a specific measure. As it is, when they are without knowledge of his intentions, they go ahead, recording their votes, and when the time comes for a vote over the veto, it is embarrassing for them to change their votes.

The Mellon tax rates were heartily approved by Mr. Coolidge at the outset. Now he will receive a bill from Congress which in the ordinary course of events would deserve a veto if consistency were to be regarded as a virtue. But the question of expediency arises. Is the new bill better than the present law? It is. If Mr. Coolidge vetoes the proposed bill, he delays tax revision. His strategy will be to sign it and ask for further revision if elected to the presidency next autumn.

FLUCTUATIONS AT BY-PRODUCT OVENS LESS THAN BEEHIVE

Last Six Weeks Furnishes Striking Examples of General Rule.

BY-PRODUCT ADVANTAGE

Having been sharply on the up-grade for three months, to the middle of March, production of beehive coke is now correspondingly on the down grade, says the American Metal Market. There is nothing spectacular or unusual about the decrease in beehive coke production, for since by-product coke manufacture came into prominence the beehive industry has to take the main part of the fluctuations in coke demand. The by-product ovens tend to run the more steadily, and thus the percentage fluctuations in the rate of beehive coke production are wider than the percentage fluctuations of coke consumption. The consumption is suggested more or less closely by the rate at which pig iron is produced, for on an average 75 to 80 per cent of the coke made goes into iron blast furnaces.

The latest high point on Connellsville coke production was reached in the week ended March 15 and weekly production as reported by the Connellsville Courier has been as follows:

Week ended	Net tons.
March 15	240 250
March 22	238 840
March 29	217 900
April 5	210 110
April 12	201,440
April 19	186 620

The decrease in six weeks is 32 per cent. This is a much greater percentage decrease than there has been in pig iron production, while if weekly figures were available of by-product coke production they would undoubtedly show a smaller percentage decrease than has occurred in pig iron. The general rule is that the production of by-product coke fluctuates less widely, and the production of beehive coke more widely, than the production of pig iron.

The expense of building by-product ovens is great and once the ovens are built they are going to be used if that is at all possible. There is not only the advantage of their being economical to operate and of involving a heavy interest expense when idle, there is also the point that they suffer physically from being allowed to cool. The operation is very flexible up to a certain point, as the coking time can be varied. Thus a by-product plant can reduce its tonnage output per week very readily to a certain point, by lengthening the coking time, after which further reduction can be made only by putting ovens out entirely and this is to be avoided except in emergencies.

In March of this year, the last month reported upon, production of by-product coke was 3,220,000 net tons. Only in two months in the history of the industry, March and May of last year, was the output greater. Should coke requirements fall off still farther the output of by-product coke would hardly decrease much, but activity at beehive ovens might decrease to almost insignificant proportions.

Lemon Juice Whitens Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck arms and hands. It can not irritate. Dunbar Organizes Baseball Club; Will Play at Home or Abroad; Meet Morrell First Opening Game Will Be on Dunbar Grounds With Neighboring Coke Town.

DRAWING UP SCHEDULE

Dunbar has organized a baseball team which will play both at home and abroad this season. It is composed practically entirely of Dunbar athletes and the management is now preparing to draw up a schedule for the season. Ralph Gibson has been elected manager and he desires to get in touch with teams wanting games. His address of P. O. Box No. 248, Dunbar, or he can be called on the Tri-State telephone.

The team has been in the field for several days, getting the kinks worked out of muscles and practicing for the opening match which will be played at Dunbar on Saturday evening at 5 o'clock. Morrell will be the first opponent.

The team is ready to play games on any dates. The best material in the furnace town has been secured for the line-up. Dunbar has always been represented by fast diamond combinations and this year is not expected to prove any exception.

COKER TRACK SQUAD HOLDS WORK-OUT ON DAWSON RACE TRACK

Connellsville's track and field squad "worked out" at Dawson yesterday, making final tests in preparation for the events to be staged there on Saturday.

The Cokers are far more advanced in the work than was the case last spring in the first meet, and as a result there is considerably greater interest in the athletic event.

Practically every school in the county will be represented in the contests. The program will open at 2 o'clock.

Mount Pleasant Wins Over East Huntingdon High

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, May 8.—The roughness of the diamond is blamed for 18 errors in a game between Mount Pleasant High and East Huntingdon High baseball teams at Tarr Wednesday. The Mount Pleasant team won, 10-6. The score by innings:

Mount Pleasant	010 021 051—10
East Huntingdon	000 103 201— 6

Pirates Off Again

The Pittsburgh Pirates dropped a game to the Chicago Cubs yesterday, 5-1. Five pitchers, Cooper, Stone, Steinecker, Lundgren and Adams, were used, but none was able to check the onslaught.

* * *

The announcement that Collier's baseball team has "adopted" Connellsville is cheering to many fans of this community. It seemed that the coke city would have to go through a season again without representation on the diamond.

* * *

In a 10-inning game the New York Giants won on an error by Philadelphia yesterday, 4-3.

The members of Connellsville High School's track team make a snappy appearance in their new uniforms.

* * *

Baseball season at Scottdale and at South Connellsville opens on Saturday. Connellsville will be emptied of sportsmen—with many attending the two games and the others at Dawson.

* * *

The track at the Dawson Driving Park is in good shape. All that is now needed to make the event a success is fair weather.

Indians of Amazon Valley

What is the normal state of the Jibaro Indian of the Amazon valley, first, for the purpose of getting wives from neighboring or enemy tribes, second, for revenge of injuries inflicted upon relatives during wars, then for enemy heads that are supposed to bring good luck to the possessors because of the sacrifice of the victim to the devil. The heads of their enemies also become a source of income to these savage Amazonian tribes, since they are exchanged with traders for arms, ammunition etc.

The skull is removed from the head of the decapitated enemy through a slit in the back from the neck up. The skin is then boiled to arrest putrefaction after which it is dried and reduced in size by inserting hot stones the size of an orange. When the interior has been shrunk to the size of the stones hot sand is used to continue the process of drying and shrinking. After the process is completed, the head is hung up in the hut as a trophy and feasts are held in its honor. These miniature heads, retaining to a remarkable degree characteristic likeness to the living person, are in demand in the outside world.—Detroit News.

Another Scholarly Umpire

John Heydler has another scholarly gentleman on his umpire staff. They may all be such, but, be that as it may, Monroe Sweeney, a recent appointee, is a bachelor of arts. He is a graduate of Bethany college, in West Virginia, and got his degree there. Like Ernest Quigley, alumnus of Kansas Agricultural College, Manhattan, Kan., he is a football and basketball referee. Erudition is no bar to ability to call 'em right.

Parent of Modern Games

Handball is believed to be the parent of all modern games of ball, the ancestor of tennis, cricket and baseball. First the hand was covered with a glove to protect it. Then came the first crude form of racquet and bat, which underwent many changes until the present-day racquet and bat were evolved.

Manufacture of Cement in Film

"The Story of Portland Cement" is the latest addition to the series of industrial motion picture films released by the Department of the Interior, through the Bureau of Mines. This film, which is one reel in length, has been prepared in commemoration of the 100th university of the invention of Portland cement in 1824.

The film depicts vividly the quarrying of the raw cement rock, one especially striking scene being the setting off by electrical means of a huge dynamite blast. The loading of the loose cement rock into cars by steam shovels is shown. The pulverizing of the cement rock in giant crushers and the transporting of the crushed material on belt conveyors are depicted. Methods of wet and dry grinding of the crushed cement rock are shown. Views are given of the drying of the ground material in kilns for the purpose of driving off water and carbon dioxide.

The spectator is shown how at a temperature of 2,700 degrees F. cement clinker is formed, and it is pointed out that it requires the burning of half a ton of coal to produce one ton of cement. Views of the cement clinker stored in huge piles are given as well as of the final grinding of this clinker into cement. Laboratory testing methods by which the manufacture of Portland cement is at all times kept under careful chemical control are shown. An interesting feature is the depicting of the passing of Portland cement through a sieve with 10,000 holes to the square inch and which is capable of holding water. The testing of cement briquettes, to determine whether the material conforms to specifications of the federal government and of the American Society for Testing Materials, is shown. Another interesting feature is the employment of intricate mechanical appliances for storing the finished cement in sacks.

Portland cement, it is pointed out in the film, has more than a thousand uses, and a few scenes depicting the more prominent of these, such as building construction, highways, sculpture etc., are shown.

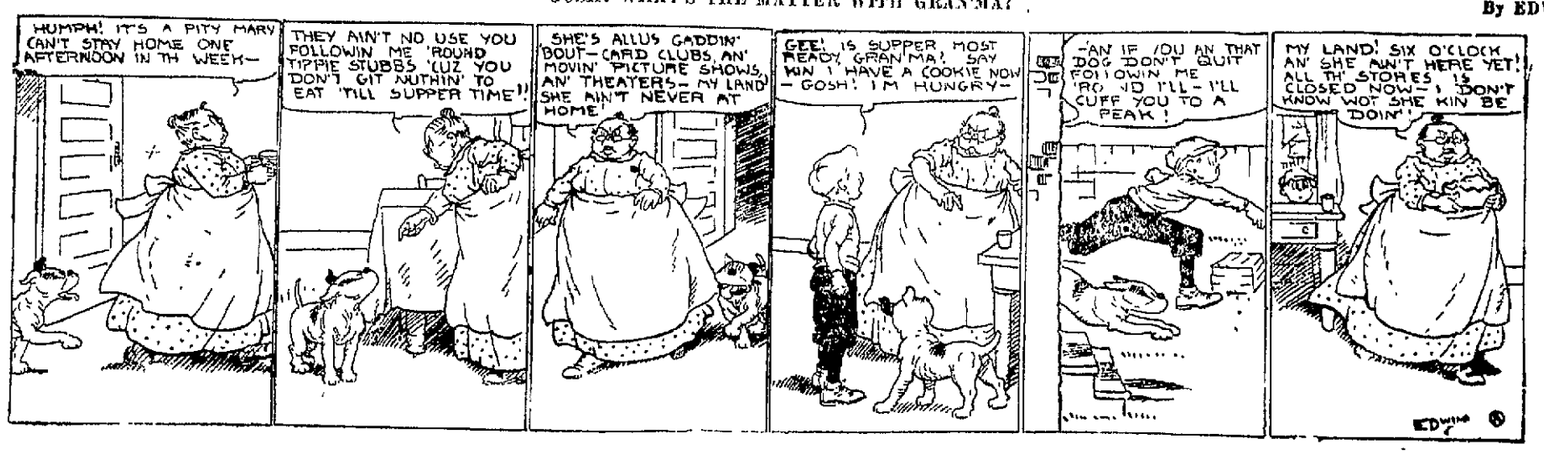

Production in West Va. Gains

"Whatchu-lelo?" exclaimed Crazy Horse.

Inflating his chest Sorrel Horse haughtily asked:

"What does the white medicine say he that?"

"It says this," answered Scissors snatching up the knife. A guard lunged forward to pluck it from his hand and found it empty. Crazy Horse called out for the man to desist. Now undistorbed Scissors made the knife appear and disappear with bewildering rapidity. He seemed to pull it from his ear, his leg, and to spit it from his mouth. It vanished for the last time only to appear from over his right shoulder, whistling rapidly and striking on its point in the wolf robe near the foot of Sorrel Horse.

Before the medicine man could say more of his magic the white man held up a small square of paper in his left hand. Then he waved his scissors above his head, while the nimble fingers of the left hand folded the paper several times. Then advancing the paper toward Crazy Horse he daintily snipped off a protruding corner. Opening the paper he revealed that the one movement of the blades cut out a perfect star of five points. Until the simple trick was explained it must remain a big mystery to the wondering spectators, and a mystery as always awaken, therefore a medicine.

Especially did it appeal to Crazy Horse, inasmuch as the star reminded him of General Crook, or Three Stars. And how could one stroke of the two blades cut it out? His face was somber as he turned to Sorrel Horse and asked:

"Is these more medicine?"

Sorrel Horse, now desperate in his desire to prove the superiority of his magic, replied:

"Let Shunca-dura and the white man be tied fast and placed in a lodge together. We will see whose medicine comes first to take off the rawhide."

Those warriors who had come with Crazy Horse were elated over this proposed test. But Little Big Man and his braves were much concerned. They had said nothing to Crazy Horse or the medicine man about Scissors' ability to free his hands from bonds. But we they remembered that the presence of Shunca-dura should render futile any such power they became more optimistic.

It was Little Big Man who superintended the tying up of the two men. They were bound with many lengths of rawhide. Crazy Horse himself inspected the things to make sure they were right, and he directed that certain knots in the cords at Sorrel Horse be made more secure.

If a medicine was worthy of a man's devotion it needed no assistance from mortals. Scissors read the disdain in Dinsdale's face and murmured:

"The more rope the better. Four feet would be harder to get out of than a dozen."

With the last knot tied the two men were carried into the prisoners' lodge and laid on robes with the center pole between them. Then they were left and the flap was drawn tightly and pegged to the ground. The assemblage considered this the supreme test, and each warrior waited in breathless expectancy. Sorrel Horse was famous for being a duffer at knots. Some of the warriors knew the white man had slipped his wrist thongs, but conditions were no longer the same.

Not only had much more cord been used, but the tying of the knots had been under the supervision of the red men's invisible helpers. Tunkan had sent his subordinates to protect his child. There, the white man had made strong offerings to Tunkan, but the red children were ever first in the heart of the stone god.

Almost as soon as the flap had been secured there came the sound of voices from the lodge, and neither white nor red man was speaking. There was only one explanation—help for the red man had arrived from Mato Tipi. One voice was high and squeaky and had been heard before when Sorrel Horse was in a trance in search of enlightenment. One voice rumbled and was quite terrifying to those grouped outside the lodge. The last would be a very mighty spirit. The side of the lodge next to the half-circle became agitated. The covering of hide shook and bulged outward and then sucked in. The voices increased in volume and gave the impression the white man's medicine was making a strong fight. Then the flap was shaken violently, and the spectators drew in their heels, ready to jump up and run if the battle was transferred to the open.

Those outside were at the peak of their excitement and were having difficulty in controlling themselves as they waited for the climax, when the voices suddenly ceased. The agitation of the lodge covering ceased. Only a deep groaning was to be heard. This groaning kept up for a minute or two, and yet nothing decisive happened. The spell was shattered by a voice behind the seated warriors calling out:

"His medicine has failed, they say. They say it is really very weak."

Dinsdale stifled back a cheer. The Indians jerked their heads about as one and were perplexed to behold the white man standing on the outer fringe of the massed group. This stupor gave way to a desire for action, and with a yell several of the men leaped to their feet and would have laid violent hands on Scissors had not Crazy Horse loudly commanded:

"Do not touch the white man. He is not running away. Open the lodge."

Scissors advanced to the medicine pole and seated himself beside Dinsdale. Little Big Man pulled up the pegs and threw back the flap. Sorrel Horse was flat on his back in his original position, and thoroughly helpless. It was most amazing. Scissors took advantage of the moment to whisper:

"Almost beat me. Nip and tuck. If Crazy Horse hadn't made them tighten up some of his knots he would have won. Once I was loose I fixed him up stronger than ever. That's what took me so long."

"So long! It was all over in no time. Why didn't some one see you come out?" muttered Dinsdale.

With a chuckle Scissors explained:

"I shook the flap and got every one to watching it. Then I slipped out the back side and ran around behind the lodges."

Sorrel Horse was released. His face was deadly with hate as he got on his feet. He would not divulge that certain extra and very stubborn knots found in his thongs had been tied by Scissors. He preferred to explain that the white man's medicine had been allowed to appear the stronger because the red medicine was displeased at the Indian's soft treatment of the white man.

"Why should Tunkan help the red man against the white when the white man is taken by the hand and called Kola?" he sullenly asked.

This defense was perfectly logical in the minds of the majority of the red men, and more than one hand closed on a skinning knife in a lust to make a fitting sacrifice to the stone god. But Crazy Horse never lost sight of the main point. He spoke up sharply, saying:

"These men speak with a straight tongue, and their medicine will help us—or else they are liars and their medicine will grow very weak. We must find out if the young man is a friend of High Wolf, our brother of the Cheyennes. If he is then Two Knives Talking has talked with a straight tongue and his medicine will help us against Three Stars and his soldiers.

"Let Little Big Man pick out two young braves who want new names, and tell them to ride swiftly to the Short Medicine Pole hills and look for High Wolf. If High Wolf is not at the hills the two men will wait three sleeps, then one shall ride to Slim butte to tell me. The other will wait three sleeps more and if High Wolf does not come, nor any soldiers are seen to be watched, then he will ride to my village.

"This place is not good for camp. Little Big Man has been very brave in going to Mato Tipi. Now let the camp move to Slim butte; for they say we shall have a big fight with Three Stars before many sleeps. Watch these two men, but do not put cords on Two Knives Talking. He will not run away and leave his friend; nor has his medicine the strength to take the rawhide off his friend yet."

Dinsdale was much discouraged when this was repeated to him, but Scissors optimistically declared:

"Even if old High Wolf is among the hills, as Crazy Horse seems to expect, the ride is more than a hundred miles from here. They'll go through flying unless something happens to them, but we haven't been skinned yet. So long as we can hope, we're all right. I'm wakan. I'm wakan witchita. Don't look downhearted. Look jolly. That's better. You're a friend of High Wolf, remember. He'll vouch for you. You're just hungry for him to show up."

Dinsdale was taken back into the lodge and tied to the center pole. Scissors was left free but under sharp espionage. Either Crazy Horse had no fear of his trying to escape so long as his friend was a prisoner, or else he wished to tempt him to flight, and thereby prove all his words were so many lies. Scissors refrained from even moving about the camp, and from his position in the opening of the lodge kept his companion informed of all that was going on outside.

Little Big Man Pulled Up the Pegs and Threw Back the Flap.

Two ambitious young bucks were soon speeding north in search of High Wolf who was believed to be somewhere in the neighborhood of the Short Medicine Pole hills. A few hours after their departure word was given to strike the lodges and pack them on travois poles. Dinsdale's shelter was the last to be taken down. He was mounted on his own horse with his hands still fastened behind him. Scissors was commanded to ride at the front of the band with Crazy Horse on one side and Little Big Man on the other. Sorrel Horse loitered behind to have a private conference with his medicine.

A monotonous ride of twenty-five miles, almost due north, brought Slave butte abreast on the right. After the first few miles Crazy Horse had evidenced a willingness to talk with his prisoner and was ready to answer questions. He took much pleasure in describing how some Snake captives were killed at Slave butte by the Dakota in the old days, thereby originating the name, and added that much had been learned since then as to the most painful method of putting prisoners to death.

Scissors appeared greatly pleased by the gruesome recital and refused to betray any concern over the veiled threat as to his own possible fate. Although the top of the butte was about the same height as that of Mato Tipi its actual elevation above its base was less than three hundred feet owing to the sharp upgrade from the Belle Fourche.

No shelters were put up and after a meal of jerked meat guards were posted and the men rolled up in their blankets. Scissors was not tied, and Dinsdale was secured only by his legs. From the chief down to the youngest buck it was firmly believed that thongs of rawhide could not hold Scissors, and as an extra precaution against his attempting flight Sorrel Horse offered to stand watch over him. Nor could there have been a more zealous guard, for whenever the picture man opened his eyes it was to find the baleful orbs of the medicine man staring at him.

When they resumed their journey in the morning the course still held northerly, and Crazy Horse informed Scissors they were to pass through Prospect valley between the Short Pine hills, and then turn east and skirt the bad lands and make a hard ride of some forty miles before reaching the Slim butte village. The chief seemed to be very confident that his village was inaccessible for the soldiers, should they ever come.

CHAPTER X

The White Man Score

Because of a heavy rain the Slim butte village was not reached until the close of the third day out from Prospect valley. The clouds broke and the afternoon sun shone warm as the Ogalala and their prisoners came in sight of the village.

As they rode up the slope to the village the prisoners counted thirty-seven lodges besides four uncovered frames. One lodge, much larger than the others, had a tall pole standing beside the entrance to which was attached a long strip of flannel heavily fringed with feathers.

At less than a man's height there was suspended a large rattle which bore a turtle design.

Dinsdale assumed this was the lodge of Crazy Horse until Scissors informed him the chief was extremely domestic and that this particular shelter belonged to a military society, organized by Sitting Bull and known as the Strong Hearts.

They were under the direct command of American Horse who was absent on a scout to the head of Heart river. American Horse had left word for Crazy Horse that Sitting Bull would soon be on the Little Missouri, or the Heart with five thousand braves and that the combined forces would descend on the Black hills and wipe out all the settlements before the soldiers could arrive from the Big Horn country. Crazy Horse although a stoic in concealing his feelings, was much pleased over the likelihood of an early joining of forces. He ordered that the prisoners be conducted to a lodge and well guarded but not bound.

The hard travel and the fare of jerked meat had told more severely on Dinsdale than on his companion, and the former was glad to throw himself on a pile of robes and succumb to the luxury of complete relaxation. Scissors was more worried because of the danger threatening the hill settlements than he cared to admit, and he remained at the opening of the lodge in a hope of learning something definite.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr James H Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times he could hardly get about and was unable to work.

He finally decided after years of medical study that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities commonly called uric acid deposits were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every pain and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

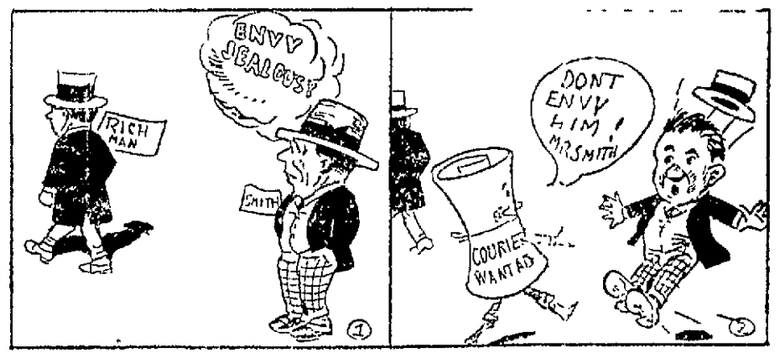

He freely gave his discovery which he called Allenrhu to others who took it with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed druggists everywhere to dispense Allenrhu with the understanding that the first pint bot le does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment. New Treatment For Varicose or Swollen Veins

Swollen veins are dangerous and often burst. Sufferers are advised to get a two-ounce, original bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength) at any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins and bunches at once.

Physicians recommend Emerald Oil; it is used in hospital practice and a small bottle will last a long time, because it is very concentrated and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush as directed until the swelling is reduced to normal. It is guaranteed.

So marvelously powerful is Emerald Oil that enlarged glands, wens and even goitre disappears when used steadily.

COULD NOT WALK BECAUSE OF PAIN

Bad Case of Woman's Illness Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Louis, Missouri.—"I had such a bad case of female trouble that I could not walk because of the pains from inflammation. My back was all done up. I could hardly bend, could not go up stairs because of weakness, and no one could possibly be in worse shape than I was. I have taken twelve bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am a strong woman now and can work down any of my neighbors. They wonder how I can do so much work. I dare say that I have recommended your medicine to a thousand women. A little book was thrown at my door and that is how I first learned of it."—Mrs. D. M. BEAUCHAMP, 1104 Morrison Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

PROGRESS MADE IN LIQUIDATION STOCKS OF STEEL

Mill Operations Decrease as Current Orders Decrease; Upturn Is Expected to Come After July.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Review will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows:

Liquidation in the steel market has been proceeding in a smooth and orderly manner and much progress has been made. Jobbers and manufacturing consumers are engaged in liquidating, or reducing, stocks their orders to mills being correspondingly light, while consumption has proceeded with no substantial diminution except in a few lines.

There have been few suspensions or postponements except in the sheet industry where they have been quite prevalent for about a month. Mill operations have been decreasing chiefly because current orders decreased and there was relatively little business on books for extended delivery.

The steel price situation is giving a better account of itself. Prices have not tumbled as they seemed early in April to be in danger of doing. The mills as a whole are making a more or less determined stand and prices have not yielded further in the past week in any important respect.

Steel ingot production is now below a rate of 40,000,000 tons a year, perhaps considerably below, but the total production from January 1 to date is above the average of last year. The comparison supplements observation of the trade that there has been overproduction but the tonnage is relatively small and liquidation will be completed in a short time, perhaps by the end of June, quite probably by the end of July. An upturn in production, in other words, is to be expected after July.

Bars, shapes and plates are quite firm within a range of 2.20c to 2.30c in territory still controlled by Pittsburg base prices. Chicago formally departed from Pittsburg basing nearly three years ago and of late the east has been observing merely the form, not the substance.

Semi-finished steel presents a slightly easier aspect, sheet bars having gone in one case at $40. Billets are untested.

Pig iron is quiet in all districts. Deliveries are fair and the great bulk of the tonnage going on old orders is at above present quotations.
